INTRODUCTION

Retail is usually classified by type of products as follows:

Food products

Hard goods ("hardline retailers") - appliances, electronics, furniture, sporting goods, etc.

Soft goods - clothing, apparel, and other fabrics.

There are the following types of retailers by marketing strategy:

1. Department Stores - very large stores offering a huge assortment of "soft" and "hard goods; often bear a resemblance to a collection of specialty stores. A retailer of such store carries variety of categories and has broad assortment at average price. They offer considerable customer service.
2. Discount Stores - tend to offer a wide array of products and services, but they compete mainly on price offers extensive assortment of merchandise at affordable and cut-rate prices. Normally retailers sell less fashion-oriented brands.
3. Supermarkets - sell mostly food products;
4. Warehouse Stores - warehouses that offer low-cost, often high-quantity goods piled on pallets or steel shelves; warehouse clubs charge a membership fee;
5. Variety Stores or "dollar stores" - these offer extremely low-cost goods, with limited selection;
6. Demographic - retailers that aim at one particular segment (e.g., high-end retailers focusing on wealthy individuals).
7. Mom-And-Pop (or Kirana Stores as they call them in India): is a retail outlet that is owned and operated by individuals. The range of products are very selective and few in numbers. These stores are seen in local community often are family-run businesses. The square feet area of the store depends on the store holder.
8. Specialty Stores: A typical speciality store gives attention to a particular category and provides high level of service to the customers. A pet store that specializes in selling dog food would be regarded as a specialty store. However, branded stores also come under this format. For example if a customer visits a Reebok or Gap store then they find just Reebok and Gap products in the respective stores.
9. General Store - a rural store that supplies the main needs for the local community;
10. Convenience Stores: is essentially found in residential areas. They provide limited amount of merchandise at more than average prices with a speedy checkout. This store is ideal for emergency and immediate purchases.

11. Hypermarkets: provides variety and huge volumes of exclusive merchandise at low margins. The operating cost is comparatively less than other retail formats. A classic example is the Metro™ in Bangalore.

12. Supermarkets: is a self service store consisting mainly of grocery and limited products on non food items. They may adopt a Hi-Lo or an EDLP strategy for pricing. The supermarkets can be anywhere between 20,000-40,000 square feet. Example: SPAR™ supermarket.

13. Malls: has a range of retail shops at a single outlet. They endow with products, food and entertainment under a roof. Example: Sigma mall and Garuda mall in Bangalore, Express Avenue in Chennai.

14. Category killers or Category Specialist: By supplying wide assortment in a single category for lower prices a retailer can "kill" that category for other retailers. For few categories, such as electronics, the products are displayed at the centre of the store and sales person will be available to address customer queries and give suggestions when required. Other retail format stores are forced to reduce the prices if a category specialist retail store is present in the vicinity. For example: Pai Electronics™ store in Bangalore, Tata Croma.

14.E-tailers: The customer can shop and order through internet and the merchandise are dropped at the customer's doorstep. Here the retailers use drop shipping technique. They accept the payment for the product but the customer receives the product directly from the manufacturer or a wholesaler. This format is ideal for customers who do not want to travel to retail stores and are interested in home shopping. However it is important for the customer to be wary about defective products and non secure credit card transaction. Example: Amazon and Ebay.

15. Vending Machines: This is an automated piece of equipment wherein customers can drop in the money in machine and acquire the products. For example: Soft drinks vending at Bangalore Airport.

Retailers can opt for a format as each provides different retail mix to its customers based on their customer demographics, lifestyle and purchase behaviour. A good format will lend a hand to display products well and entice the target customers to spawn sales

Marketing strategy involves careful scanning of the internal and external environments which are summarized in a SWOT analysis. Internal environmental factors include the marketing mix, plus performance analysis and strategic constraints. External environmental factors include customer analysis, competitor analysis, target market analysis, as well as evaluation of any elements of the technological, economic, cultural or political/legal environment likely to impact success. A key component of marketing strategy is often to keep marketing in line with a company's overarching mission statements.

Once a thorough environmental scan is complete, a strategic plan can be constructed to identify business alternatives, establish challenging goals, determine the optimal marketing mix to attain these goals, and detail implementation. A final step in developing a marketing strategy is to create a plan to monitor progress and a set of contingencies if problems arise in the implementation of the plan.

Customer Profiling is, Description of a customer group or type of customer based on various demographic, psychographic and/or geographic characteristics; also called shopper profile. For example, magazine advertising salespeople provide advertisers with customer profiles describing the type of person who will be exposed to advertisements in that magazine. The description may include income, occupation, level of education, age, gender, hobbies, or area of residence. Customer profiles provide the knowledge needed to select the best prospect lists and to enable advertisers to select the best media.

Customer profiling is generally done to answer the basic marketing questions like given below and many more:

- Who are the customers?
- What types of people are attracted to different offerings?
- What kinds of people live near a given address (store location)?
- What kinds of people live in a given geographic area (this is useful when trying to decide where to locate a new store)?

Market Placement

Market placement here means, how the customers are perceiving MAX as a brand. This includes various questions like,

- What percentage of customers are visiting MAX store?
- How the customers perceive the other similar stores?
- How the customers perceive MAX as brand?
- What attracts them to MAX?
- Are they satisfied with the ambience of the store?

All these and many more questions are being asked to the customers through the questionnaire from where the customers' perception about the store is taken. This helps the store manager to take proper action required to attract most customers in the given area where store is located and also to retain the existing customers.

Thus market placement is an important criterion to be checked regularly by the retailers to improve the store performance.

Competitor profiling

The strategic rationale of competitor profiling is powerfully simple. Superior knowledge of rivals offers a legitimate source of competitive advantage. The raw material of competitive advantage consists of offering superior customer value in the firm's chosen market. The definitive characteristic of customer value is the adjective, superior. Customer value is defined relative to rival offerings making competitor knowledge an intrinsic component of corporate strategy. Profiling facilitates this strategic objective in three important ways.

First, profiling can reveal strategic weaknesses in rivals that the firm may exploit.

Second, the proactive stance of competitor profiling will allow the firm to anticipate the strategic response of their rivals to the firm's planned strategies, the strategies of other competing firms, and changes in the environment.

Third, this proactive knowledge will give the firms strategic agility. Offensive strategy can be implemented more quickly in order to exploit opportunities and capitalize on strengths.

Similarly, defensive strategy can be employed more deftly in order to counter the threat of rival firms from exploiting the firm's own weaknesses.

A common technique is to create detailed profiles on each of your major competitors. These profiles give an in-depth description of the competitor's background, finances, products, markets, facilities, personnel, and strategies. This involves Marketing segments served, market shares, customer base, growth rate, and customer loyalty promotional mix, promotional budgets, advertising themes, ad agency used, sales force success rate, online promotional strategy distribution channels used (direct & indirect), exclusivity agreements, alliances, and geographical coverage pricing, discounts, and allowances.

Customer services in Retail

Marketing is concerned with the exchange relationships that exist between a retailer and its customers. Quality and customer service are the key elements in this relationship. Today's competitive environment requires retailer to understand and apply properly the concept of relationship from the perspective of the customer and the other channel members. This will ensure that:

Customers strongly believe that the retailer offers good value for money; and

All the channel members (including the customer) would like to do business with that retailer. The challenge of the retail unit is to bring three critical areas, namely marketing, customer service, and quality, into closer alignment. Relationship marketing attempts at bringing these areas together.

Loyalty Programmes: Bases of loyalty programmes

Retailers focus on loyalty programmes since it is believed that:

- Loyal customers are cheaper to serve.
- They are willing to pay more for a given bundle of goods.
- They act as effective marketers for the store's offerings.

Relationship rewards as part of loyalty programmes

Reward is a crucial part of any loyalty programmes. It has to be desirable enough to change the behavior of the customers. In fact, if the reward is really well chosen, it will be attractive to customers who are not really valuable to the business. There are various types of rewards like,

- Simple discount
- A more targeted discounts
- Points which lead to gift from a catalogue
- Points which lead to later money offs
- Extra services.

Tie ups with other brands: Under loyalty programmes offering of membership cards to the customers have become a common trend today. Every retailer is providing some or other extra benefits to the customers through these cards. These cards not only the contain rewards but the particular retailer ties up with various other brands which provides some benefits to the loyal customers of the retailer. For example, Pantaloons, one of the biggest brands in Indian retail have a Green Card for the loyal customers which provide benefits like,

- 5% off in apparels every Friday
- Fast and foremost information about sales and discounts.
- Free of cost alterations
- Pick and drop facility after alterations

Two reasons for the effectiveness of advertising in a mall.

First, shopping is a movement of thrill. Shopping mall movement, that is, you like, you buy.

Secondly, it is five-dimensional engagement. That is, the five senses of the consumer are engaged. It is a movement of truth, provided one does it well.

Malls sell their advertisement and brand spaces like hoardings, kiosks, banners, spaces, event spaces, digitals, neons, directory spaces, navigators, and event promotions. They market directly to the companies, or through a fixed contract of an agency who in turn sells on their behalf.

There are two ways a brand could advertise in the mall.

1. The brand could become resident in the mall.
2. Secondly, there are high-traffic footfalls where brands could conduct on-ground activities.

Thus it proves to be a good area for promotion.

- Membership card should be launched soon with extensive promotion to compete with similar programmes of other brands.

3. Mall branding

Various suggestions are being made for the different areas inside and outside the mall within the premises to attract the customers. The photographs are given below:

- Please note the arrows show the areas inside and outside the mall where the branding can be done.

- Some innovative ideas :can be –

1. Balloons can be tied with the MAX logo at the entrance of the mall. The balloon can be of any dark colour displaying the logo of the brand. It will be visible from far away as well as will highlight the logo to a good extent from any other competitors. In Punjab Lifestyle store MAX hanged a bag with its logo to attract the customers.
2. Cinema and theaters like PVR can be used to promote the brand
3. Theme based Visual Merchandising, the in house promotion may feature seasons or occasions like summer,holi,diwali,christmas,etc. events like world cup etc can also be used as a theme. For eg, for holi theme the manequinns can be dressed with multi colour outfits(ethnic as well as western)with colourful assesories, bowls/packets containing colours ,'pichkari' etc can be displayed. Westside's last year theme was Hawaiian and this year's wildest way. Similarly Max can use themes like Go Green etc.
4. Brand ambassadors: nearly every brand has its own brand ambassador or at least at the opening of the store there's some celebrity like Lifestyle store in Mumbai at Phoenix was inaugrated by Mahima Choudhary.
5. Discos and clubs: Max can have a tie up with disc for an evening (New Year or diwali bash) where guests can stand to win gift vouchers and prizes from Max.

8. Sales promotion through, Coupons: it can be distributed to the customer on a purchase of particular range and then a certain number of coupons can be collected for premium gifts etc. coupons can also be given for price offs.Price off coupons are being distributed by MAX during last 2 weeks.
9. More extensive advertisements in every media highlighting the brand and its popularity in international market like 'The largest brand in the middle east. 150 stores across 11 countries.40 stores across 20 cities in India' the above should be mentioned in ads and other promotional methods. The information displayed about the Landmark Group can be displayed outside the store, if there is vacant space in and out of store as it can attract customers as they will know about the international brand they are purchasing.

10. Tag lines: Max can put an attractive tag line changing according to the offers made etc. like Pantaloons during their sale period added a tag line in their ad 'time for a wardrobe makeover'. Max can also highlight 'look good feel good' in every ad which it is doing so far.

11. Loyalty programmes and tie ups

- The loyalty programme should start with full swing.
