Review of literature:-

Playing sports take up an enormous amount of time in an athlete's career in college. While the athletes feel they may be missing out on some aspects of college, both socially and academically, they feel that the trade-offs are well worth it. This has been seen for all different sports, gender, races, and ages. The positive response to sports that these athletes have translated to very satisfying experiences as they go through college (Potuto, 2007). To make up for missing out on some college experiences, there are a number of athletes that participate in social and academic clubs and organizations around campus. It has been shown that more involvement in college activities, besides playing sports, keep students more engaged around campus and enhances their experience in college (Gayles & Hu, 2009). This satisfaction the athlete's receive is directly related to the fact that they are part of a team on campus. Without these experiences, the students would not have enjoyed their time at college as much.

Source – data from selected questionnaires (Options and Level Best-1, Better-2, Avarage-3,Bad-4, Poor-5)

From the above table majority of students says that sports facility, ground facility, availability of equipments, uniform facility and stadium faculty is available in the college and students are satisfied with it. Colleges received grants for sports development from UGC, Central Govt. and State Govt, hence they utilized grant for it and construct the gymkhana building, Indore and outdoor stadium, also purchased sports equipment through grants.

Here Hypothesis is rejected

But majority of students are not satisfied with sports director and his duty. Sports director is the key person in sports. His post is isolated and he is responsible to create awareness of sports activities among students.

From above table majority of students are not satisfied about following facilities

1. Sports director do not perform his duty in the college, it affect minimum participation of students in the games.
2. There is no gymkhana office available to Sports directors in the colleges; this is the hurdle between sports directors and students.

Here hypothesis is accepted.

Findings:

Students are satisfied with the sports because they get value for money and are pleased with various facilities. Playground as well as the playing environment attracts students. Indoor stadium facility is also liked by the students. Ease of participating opportunities improves their performance. Various opportunities help in diversion from everyday life, in relieving stress and maintaining fitness.

Students participate in various games but are dissatisfied about gymkhana office facility as well as the sports director on ground. Students get various sports equipment in their college. The overall response of college students regarding sports management is satisfactory. It is observed from the collected data that sports management's performance is good and they need to improve gymkhana office facility and role of sports director should be clarified.

Conclusion

The college students accept that colleges provided sports facility, ground facility, availability of equipments, uniform facility and stadium faculty to them and they are satisfied. But the students are not satisfied with Sports director, there is no specific place in the maximum colleges i.e. gymkhana office where Sports director can stay and interact with players. It is prove that Sports Management concept is used in the sports department partially, if the optimum sports management is used by the colleges, institute will get better result in sports activity.
